

Introduction to Photography

Allen Francis Foley, published poet and author has traveled throughout the State of Maine over the past few years capturing photographic images of grand scenes and subtle beauty, spectacular land and seascapes, including Maine's rural countryside and more. By displaying these images here on his website Mr. Foley hopes his work will be picked-up by states and national publications – real photography with an elegance of language and the poetry of imagination, a text that exposes us to the very fabric of existence.
